this the inmates sleep, each curled up with knees to breast and covered by the kaross, which thus serves as a cloak by day and a blanket by night. The ashes of this fire are swept up every morning and added to the heap outside. The neighbourhood of the huts is kept fairly clean. Gnawed bones are thrown on a pile, then carried out to the bushes by the women, who also sweep the huts out with a branch, and clean up any mess made by the little children. No dirt is allowed anywhere near the encampment.[1]
